

LINKed Pathway to ECU

Prediville Catholic College (PCC) and Edith Cowan College (ECC) - the alternative pathway to Edith Cowan University (ECU).

The LINKed Pathway to ECU via ECC's Diploma courses will help prepare students for a successful transition to University life and study. Students accepted into the LINKed Pathway may study General or ATAR courses, or a combination of both. The LINKed Pathway is designed for students who are capable of University study, but who are not suited to ATAR or may not meet pre-requisites to study a full ATAR load in Years 12.

Students will progress to ECC's Diploma if they achieve a minimum 50% in four Year 12 WACE courses, plus a pass (C grade) in English.

* After completing the Diploma at ECC it will take 2.5 years to complete the Bachelor of Social Science at ECU

I'm studying a Diploma of Computer Science at Edith Cowan College. In high school I felt a little bit pressured. Teachers are asking you 'what do you want to do?' 'what do you want to be?' 'what job do you want to go into?'. After high school I took a six month break where I wanted to work out what I was doing. I figured out that you can get into university at ECU by still doing General in high school. At ECC there is so much support here that we just get so much help. They have counselling and learning support, lecturers that give you lots of spare time, it's very useful. My advice would be if teachers are kind of pressuring you and you're still not sure, you're not positive what you want to do then take some time, figure it out and there's always other pathways like Edith Cowan College. I didn't really believe I could go into an ATAR kind of Diploma course through doing General in high school, but here I am.
